Ashwaubenon High School Changing School Colors For A Day

Ashwaubenon, WI – March 25, 2010 – On Friday, March 26, Ashwaubenon High School will change its school colors for the day to honor graduates Adam and Jake Koch, who are playing for the Northern Iowa University Panthers in the “Sweet Sixteen” round of the NCAA men’s basketball tournament. The Jaguar green and gold will be replaced with NIU’s purple and gold on the day the Panthers face the Michigan State Spartans.

According to Dave Steavpack, AHS Associate Principal and Activities Director, “We urge all AHS students and staff to continue to be prideful of the Jaguar green and gold but, for one day, show your support for Adam, Jake and the entire NIU team by wearing purple and gold to school.”

Last Saturday, Northern Iowa pulled off the largest upset to date in this year’s tournament by beating the number one ranked and seeded Kansas Jayhawks. The Koch brothers played pivotal roles in the victory. Friday’s game can be seen at approximately 8:30 p.m. on CBS-TV.
