Valley View Elementary Teacher Becomes A Published Author

Ashwaubenon, WI – December 18, 2012 – Ashwaubenon’s Valley View Elementary GLOBE Resource Teacher, Rebecca Thieme-Baeseman, wrote a children’s book over the summer while in South Carolina. The book has been published and is now available to purchase.

Wisconsin-based Orange Hat Publishing, a family owned and operated business, accepted Thieme-Baeseman’s manuscript. The title of the book is: Miller: The Mostly Misunderstood Mischief-Maker Who Went Missing. Everyone thinks Miller is a mischievous kitty, including the Ringos, who are the proud and sometimes embarrassed owners of this daring cat. But Miller simply feels misunderstood as he finds himself in trouble rather often—from eating all of the fish in a neighbor’s newly installed pond to stealthily stealing people food behind the backs of his owners. You can follow Miller as his appetite for adventure gets him into his most memorable predicament yet!

As a teacher, Thieme-Baeseman is absolutely thrilled to have this accomplishment under her belt not only for personal goal fulfillment but also to encourage her students as writers.

You can find more information about Thieme-Baeseman’s book by going to the publisher’s website at <http://www.orangehatpublishing.com>. From there, you can click on link that will take you to amazon.com to purchasing the book.
